INDEX.

English and Normans—Sir Francis Palgrave, 2; writings of Sir Francis, 5; Ancient Britain, 7; ethnology of Ancient Britain, 9; Roman Britain, 11; origin and settlement of the Saxons, 13; the Danes, 15; distributions of race in Anglo-Saxon Britain, 17, 19, 21; civilization of Roman Britain, 23; civilization, 25; political institutions of the Anglo-Saxons, 27; Northmen invasions of Normandy, 29, 31; the Norman Conquest, 33; Norman ascendancy in England, 35; retention of Saxon law—trial by jury, 37; trial by jury—the King's council, 39; the King's courts—growth of representation, 41; good effects of the conquest—the great charter, 43; Sir Francis and the mediæval churchmen, 45.

The Chinese—their Rebellions and Civilization, 46; meditation on the pyramid, 47; visit to the insurgent camp, 49; interview with the rebel princes, 51; right of rebellion, 53; the Manchoo masters of China, 55; Chinese warriors, 57; Hung-sew-tseuen's excursion to heaven, 59; the Eastern prince, 61; tea or Christianity, 63; anomalies of Chinese civilization, 65; how they deal with debtors in China, 67; flogging an empire, 69; Confucius, the true Emperor of China, 71; the Abbé Huc's new production, 73.

Bishop Berkeley—his Life and Writings, 75; his college life—contemporary events, 77; his sermons on passive obedience, 79; he becomes the friend of Swift, Addison, and Pope, 81; he becomes the chaplain of Lord Peterborough—his travels, 83; his treatise on motion—his tract on the South Sea scheme, 85; he goes to Ireland—Esther Vanhomrigh, 87; his scheme of church education in America, 89; failure of his great project, 91; he becomes Bishop of Cloyne, 93; practical tendency of his later writings, 95; retires to Oxford and dies there—his metaphysics, 97; analysis of his idealism, 99; refutation of his idealism, 101; his ethical works—Alciphron, 103; the first and second dialogues, 105; the third and fourth dialogues, 107; peculiar proofs of the being of God, 109; the fifth and sixth dialogues, 111; seventh dialogue—Locke's theory of abstraction, 113; his political works—the Querist, 115; contrast between his method and that of Butler, 117.

French Romances of the Thirteenth Century, 119; appropriation of classical and Eastern legend, 121; Northern France in the thirteenth century, 123; King Florus and the fair Jeanne, 125; successful treachery, 127; all's well that ends well, 129; the scepticism of the South, 131; Aucassin and Nicolette, 133; the legend of Amis and Amile, 135; the story of the Emperor Constant, 137; the Countess of Ponthieu, 139, 141; fragments of the Latin declensions, 143.

Ages of Christendom before the Reformation, 144; character of the work, 145; the early Church, 147; the period of innovation, 149; Justin Martyr, Origen, Tertullian, 151; theology and religious life from A.D. 100 to 325, 153; the age of development, 155; traditionalism and reaction, 157.

Contemporary Notices of Shakespeare, 159; parish register, 161; the lamentation of Thalia, 163; Greene's pamphlet, 165; dedication of the Poems, 167; Meres' Palladis Tamia, 171; town-accounts of Stratford, 175; allusions of Barnefield and Weever, 177; Allot's English Parnassus, 179; editions of Hamlet, 185, 187; retirement to Stratford, 189; the London Corporation and the players, 193; reminiscences of Shakespeare belonging to the year 1609, 195; editions of the plays, 197; business-matters at Stratford, 199; folio collection of the plays, 206; poetical notices in the folio, 205, 207; Ben Jonson's tribute to his memory, 209.

Charles Spurgeon and the Pulpit, 210; elocution and style, 213; doctrine, 215; significance of his success, 217.

The Life of Charlotte Brontë, 218; her education — moral and physical, 219; she is sent to Cowan's Bridge School, 221; her self-education—her earliest tales and poems, 223; letter to Southey; his answer, 225; she projects a school—family trouble, 227; her success—her family bereavements, 229; her brief happiness—her death, 231.

EPILOGUE.

232—280.

LITERATURE.

Alfieri and Goldoni, by E. Copping, 233.
Helps's Spanish Conquest in America, 235.
Gotthold's Emblems, 238.
The Genesis, a Poem, 239.
Ashburn, 240.
The Metaphysicians, 240.
The Eve of St. Mark, 243.
Freeman's History of the Saracens, 243.
French Literature, 244.

ART.

Exhibition of the Royal Academy, 253.

SCIENCE.

Hugh Miller's Testimony of the Rocks, 255.
F. Harrington's Systematic Philosophy, &c., 258.

THEOLOGY.

Dr. Donaldson's Christian Orthodoxy, &c., 261.
Letters of Calvin, 273.
Gilfillan's Christianity and our Era, 274.
Toller's Expository Discourses on Philippians, 274.
Dr. Leifchild on Preaching and Preachers, 274.
Arnot's Laws from Heaven for Life on Earth, 275.
Pearce's Lectures on Inspiration, 275.
Dr. Candlish's Scripture Characters, 275.
The City, by Dr. Guthrie, 275.
Luther's Evangelien-Auslegung, &c., by Eberle, 276.
Sartorius, Die Lehre von der heiligen Liebe, 276.
Ewald's Sendschreiben des Ap. Paulus, 277.
Hilgenfeld's Jüdische Apocalyptik, 277.
Recent German Publications—miscellaneous, 279.

Statius and his Age, 281 ; education of Statius, 283 ; rise of public recitation, 285 ; its evils, 287 ; recitation of the Thebaid—the plot ; plagiarisms of Statius, 291 ; shipwreck and combat of the Cestus, 293 ; Virgil pillaged and disfigured, 295 ; Ovid similarly served, 297 ; the sylvæ, 299 ; crusade against myths, 301 ; Martial and his rival, 303 ; domestic life and death, 305.

The Ethics of Revealed Theology, 307 ; moral government as affected by moral evil, 309 ; the divine government and human government, 311 ; ethics of the Old Testament, 313 ; imprecatory passages in Scripture, 315, 317, 319 ; false ethics, how related to a false theology, 321.

Mechanics' Institutes and the Society of Arts, 323 ; objects—causes of failure, 325 ; scheme of the Society of Arts for examination, 327 ; results of examinations, 329 ; advantages and defects of the scheme, 331.

Andrew Crosse, the Electrician, 333 ; school exploits, 335 ; his lightning apparatus, 337 ; his dissection of thunder-clouds, 339 ; fiery character of a November fog, 341 ; how he made crystals, 343 ; art going beyond nature, 345 ; the electrical insects, 347 ; electrified potatoes, 349 ; his financial infirmities, 351 ; his public appearance at Bristol, 353 ; Andrew Crosse, the poet, 355.

Representative Reform, 356 ; subjects of discussion, 357 ; the principle of representation, 359 ; the fifty-pound franchise, 361 ; immense proportion of freeholders, 363 ; borough polling disproportionate to registration, 365 ; educational qualifications, 367 ; Lord Brougham on the perpetuity of the franchise, 369 ; the freemen, 371, 373 ; relative representation of town and country, 375 ; relative wealth of borough and county constituents, 377 ; undue fusion of town and country voters, 379 ; re-adjustment of borough representation, 381.

African Discoveries, 382 ; African discovery strangely neglected, 383 ; progress of African discovery to 1854, 385 ; Dr. Barth sets out on his journey—ancient remains, 387 ; arrival at Agades—the Sultan's installation, 389 ; they set out for Káno—the start of the caravan, 391 ; neatness of the African villages, 393 ; Káno—its general characteristics, 395 ; arrival at Kúkawa, 397 ; journey to Adamáwa, 399 ; the Be-nuwé—its importance, 401 ; the Marghi—the Kanúri, 403 ; experience of wild Arab life, 405 ; the slave hunts, 407 ; journey to Bagírmi—the King of the Waters, 409 ; opposition and imprisonment—arrives at Má-seña, 411 ; the great importance of the African discoveries, 413 ; what shall be the future of Central Africa ? 415.

The Cotton Dearth, 416 ; 'terrible prosperity,' 417 ; the Manchester Commissioner, 419 ; gaining a loss, 421 ; increasing exports no sure sign of prosperity, 423 ; Lancashire dependent on slavery, 425 ; alarming increase of the slaves, 427 ; Negro insurrection, 429 ; apathy of Lancashire manufacturers, 431 ; the American cotton crop, 433 ; annual increase of cotton cultivation, 435 ; the Cotton Supply Association, 437 ; growth of New Orleans cotton in India, 439 ; how to achieve success, 441 ; has the Company done its duty ? 443 ; who is most to blame ? 445 ; increasing exports of cotton goods, 447.

Béranger, 449 ; his education, 451 ; introduction to Lucien Bonaparte, 453 ; Béranger during the Empire, 455, 457 ; Béranger during the Hundred Days, 459 ; during the Restoration, 461, 463, 465 ; under Louis-Philippe, 467 ; his last years, 469 ; his theory of the song, 471, 473 ; Béranger and Burns, 475.

The Government of India and the Mutinies, 476 ; political development of the East India Company, 477 ; struggles with the Portuguese and the Dutch, 479 ; consequences of the war with France, 481 ; the Acts of 1813 and 1833, 483 ; extent of our Indian possessions, 485 ; the annexation of Oude, 487 ; the mutinies, 489 ; the cartridges—Colonel Birch, 491 ; our mistake in the recognition of caste, 493 ; the religious branch of the question, 495 ; constitutional government impossible in the East, 497 ; the fairness and mildness of our rule, 499 ; praiseworthy exertions of the Government, 501 ; a change in the Government imperative, 503.

EPILOGUE.

505—552.

LITERATURE.

Gladstone's Kansas, 507.
Finlay's History of Greece, &c., 510.
The Militiaman at Home and Abroad, 511.
Freeland's Lectures and Miscellanies, 511.
Milne's Life in China, 512.
Memoirs of Sir Robert Peel, 513.
Tom Brown's School Days, 513.
"Shall and Will," by Sir E. W. Head, 513.
Border Lands of Spain and France, 514.
Stirling's Letters from the Slave States, 514.
Macdonald's Poems, 519.
The Roua Pass, 521.
McDougal's Poems and Songs, 521.
Arago's Biographies, 521.
Below the Surface, 523.
The Rose of Ashurst, 524.
City Poems, by Alexander Smith, 524.
Mrs. Ellis on the Education of Character, 525.
Buckle's History of Civilization in England, 525.
French Literature, 526.
German Literature, 527.

ART.

Ruskin's Elements of Drawing, 528.

SCIENCE.

Dr. Conolly on the Treatment of the Insane, 531.
Bacon, sa Vie, &c., by C. de Rémusat, 533.
Cousin's Philosophie Ecossaise, 534.
Lewes' Biographical History of Philosophy, 535.

THEOLOGY.

Ginsburg on the Song of Songs, 537.
Keil on Joshua, 537.
Titcomb's Bible Studies, 538.
Rigg's Modern Anglican Theology, 538.
Thompson on Inspiration, 539.
An Essay on Intuitive Morals, 540.
The Philosophy of the Bible, 540.
Wardlaw's Systematic Theology, 541.
Josiah Conder, a Memoir, 541.
The Progress of Being, by Rev. D. Thomas, 542.
Dr. Eadie's Life of Kitto, 542.
Tholuck's Light from the Cross, 543.
Heppe's Dogmatik des d. Protestantismus, 544.
König's Theologie der Psalmen, 546.
Jost's Geschichte des Judenthums, 549.
Athanasii Alexandrini Præcepta ad Antiochum, 549
Channing, sa Vie et ses Œuvres, 550.
S. Ambrosii de Officiis, 550.
Guide Biblique, Descombraz, 551.
Lechler's Lehre vom Heiligen Amte, 551.

Savill & Edwards, Printers, Chandos Street, Covent Garden